ABOUT ME

As a recent graduate with a BBA degree, I have always been interested in the intersection of business and technology. I have always been fascinated by the power of the web to connect people and drive change, and I am excited to start my career as a developer. In my free time, I enjoy tinkering with new technologies and learning about the latest trends in software development. I am a strong problem-solver and am always willing to go the extra mile to deliver the best possible results for my team and clients.
